

Prof. Nagendra Kumar Kaushik
Kwangwoon University,
Republic of Korea

Nagendra Kaushik received the PhD. degrees in the Department of Biomedical Science (ACBR) from University of Delhi, India, in 2010. Nagendra currently working as Associate Professor at Kwangwoon University, Seoul.

His research work is primarily focused on plasma medicine, cancer biology, immunomodulation, nanobiotechnology and biomaterials at PBRC/ APMC of Kwangwoon University. He has participated in several research projects funded by government, university and industries in the areas of plasma medicine at Kwangwoon University Seoul.

He has published more than 80 research articles (total citation: 2200; H-index: 24; i10-index: 38) in indexed journals. He has also participated in several international conference on plasma medicine as invited speaker and session chair.

He is serving as the editor of Scientific Report, PloS One, Applied Sciences, Oxidative Medicine and Cellular Longevity, Current Pharmaceutical Biotechnology and working as reviewer/guest editor of more than 50 SCI high impact journals.